July 30. Westminster. Mandate to Otto de Grandissono, keeper of the Islands of Gerneeye, Gereseye, Serk and Aureneye, to surcease the delivery, by reason of erroneous judgments, out of his hands of certain lands, tenements, liberties and rents to any of the Islanders and the levying of certain sums of money; if he shall have parted with any lands, &c. to the king's disherison, he is to resume the same into his hands together with their issues from the date of delivery, and also any sums of money adjudged in error to the Islanders or others as damages and levied by them on his goods, and to compel such persons to make full restitution to him by distraining on the goods which they have in the said Islands. A commission had been issued [2 Edward II Cal. Pat. Rolls, p. 130] touching alleged encroachments on the rights of the crown in the said Islands, and at the suggestion of divers of the Islanders that many errors, very prejudicial to them, existed in the records and processes of that commission, the king issued a further one [12 Edward II Cal. Pat. Rolls, p. 375] to John de Stonore, William de Bourne, Nicholas de Cheyny and John de Carteret to examine such records and processes and to correct errors, if any, and also to hear and determine charges of oppression and malpractices and all plaints against his justices, and the bailiffs and ministers of the said Otto. Representation was subsequently made that the said William de Bourne, Nicholas, and John de Carteret had wrongfully ordered divers lands, tenements, liberties and rents to be delivered to certain of the Islanders and had in error condemned the said Otto to pay great sums of money on account of his having received the issues of such lands, whilst in his hands, and on account of losses which the Islanders alleged they had incurred through the detention thereof. On account of these and other errors, the king had the records and processes, together with the original writs and others touching the business, brought before him, when it was found that the last named commissioners had exceeded the bounds of their commission and had in error issued such order to the king's disherison and the prejudice of the said Otto, whereat the king was much displeased, as upon the death of the said Otto, the Islands, held by him for life of the grant of Edward I, ought to revert to the king. To prevent his own disherison, and loss to the said Otto, the king issued the above mandate.

Commission of oyer and terminer to John Inge, Nicholas de Wedergrave, and John de la Fosse on petition before the king and Council by the prior of Goldeclyve in the Marches of Wales showing that, whereas that priory is of the king's advowson and the temporalities belonging to the priory are held of the king and are of his fee, and the prior is a lord of the Marches and has his liberty in those parts like other lords of the Marches there, and ought not to answer elsewhere for the lands or tenements belonging to his priory, and that neither he nor his predecessors in times past ought to answer except as lords of the Marches, William le Walshe of Lanwaryn and Griffin ap Henri, with the assent of Roger Damory, then a lord of the Marches of the adjoining lands, designing to usurp and attract the demesne of the priory to the said Roger, procured certain writs from the chancery of the said Roger in these parts against the said prior and others his tenants concerning certain tenements of the prior in Goldeclyve and Multon, within the prior's liberty of Goldclyve, to be pleaded in the court of the said Roger in Lembenith and Kaerliol, and sued out process thereof there; and although the king prohibited the said Roger and his bailiffs from holding such pleas in his courts to the king's prejudice and commanded the said William and Griffin to implead the said prior and his tenants elsewhere according to law and the custom of those parts, if they should deem it expedient, nevertheless the said Roger and his bailiffs continued the said pleas in the said courts and the said William and Griffin prosecuted the same pleas there until the tenements were by judgment of the said courts adjudged to them, to the prejudice of the king and the danger of the disherison of the church of the said prior. A contention having arisen between the said sacristan and the said abbot and convent, represented by Roger de Roderham, their fellow monk and proctor, touching the tithes of lands and meadows cultivated at their own expense by the abbot and convent in their manors of Colingham and Berdeshay, which they hold of the king at fee farm, which manors are in the parishes of Colingham and Berdeshay; the said contention was settled with the counsel and consent of Master John de Craucumb, archdeacon of the East Riding, vicar general of J. archbishop of York then absent in distant parts, and official of the court of York, as follows. The abbot and convent and their successors to be quit of all tithes on their said lands and meadows in the said manors, whether of ancient cultivation or to be newly assarted, so long as they shall hold the said manors of the king at fee farm; but as regards those lands and meadows which divers tenants, whether free or servile, rich or poor, hold in the said manors from the abbot and convent at the time of these presents, in case any or all such lands and meadows shall come to the hands of the abbot and convent,

Also they will pay the said Master Thomas and his successors or their attorneys 10 marks 3*s.* 8*d.* a year at York in half yearly instalments, the first payment to be made at the Purification, 1292, so long as they hold the said lands and meadows of the king at fee farm, with this proviso, that if by fraud or simplicity they fall away from this immunity, and are compelled to pay the tithes of the said lands against the form of the present letters, the said land of Upper Wodeacre with the said meadow shall revert to them, and they shall not be bound to pay the said money. And if they shall fail in their said terms of payment or in their warranty of the said land and meadow, it shall be permitted to the official of the court of York, whether the see be void or not, to compel them by ecclesiastical censure to pay the said money and also 36*s.* 4*d.* a year for the value of the said land and meadow. Inspeximus of an indenture sealed with the seal of the commonalty of the city of Dublin, dated in the Guildhall of Dublin, 17 December, 2 Edward II, to the following effect, viz.

Geoffrey de Morton and Maud his wife lately built certain stone houses upon the wall of the city of Dublin at the end of the bridge in 'le Briggetrete' without the licence or assent of the then mayor and commonalty, to the manifest injury of the citizens, inasmuch as they no longer had sufficient defence upon that wall as they had before the erection of the houses. Afterwards, at the suit of the said citizens the obstruction was removed by command of the king, whereby the said houses were greatly injured and remain unroofed to the damage of the tenants thereof. It is therefore agreed between the mayor and commonalty of Dublin and John de Grauntsete and Alice his wife, the present tenants of the said houses, as follows, viz., the said mayor and commonalty grant to the said John and Alice that they may, having first obtained the king's licence, rebuild the houses on the wall and make and fit windows, latrines and slots (rudera), by view of the mayor and commonalty, in the wall, on condition that the citizens may have upon the wall a sufficient way of three and a half feet, crenellated and embattled, for passing to and fro between the two towers at the end of the said bridge whenever necessary for the defence of the city, to be built at the expense of the said John and Alice within two years: also the said John and Alice may have a latrine constructed flowing through the wall towards the Avenliffy near the tower at the end of the said bridge, in its present form for the easement of their chambers in the said houses; rendering a rent every year to the said mayor and commonalty for the said easements, latrine and other commodities above-granted of 12*d.* payable at Easter and Michaelmas. And if the said rent fall in arrear for a whole year, it shall be lawful for the mayor and commonalty to stop the opening of the latrine with boards and nails by way of distraint, until all the arrears of the said rent shall be fully paid.

In exchange for this covenant the said John and Alice grant to the mayor and commonalty a messuage which they recovered against Geoffrey de Morton and Maud his wife before the justiciary of Ireland by recognition of an assize of novel disseisin, which messuage is called le Fischous, according to metes and bounds made by consent of the parties by twelve citizens whose names with their verdict were enrolled in the roll of the 'Domesdaye'; the said messuage containing in length westwards from the said tower 15 feet, and in breadth southwards from the city wall the same, and extending from the ground to the top of the arch over the door of the said messuage at the foot of the said tower, by which door is the entrance to the Fischsous under the solar of the John and Alice.

Also, the said mayor and commonalty quitclaim to the said John and Alice all right they may have in all the buildings of wood and stone built over the said Fischshous saving their jurisdiction, services and rents due and accustomed, on condition that the said John and Alice and their successors maintain such wood and stone buildings over the said messuage dry and waterproof, so that no damage may happen to the said Fischshous through defect of roofing and in case of such defect the mayor and commonalty may repair the same and levy the cost thereof upon the said John and Alice by distraint. On the other hand no damage or injury shall happen by the mayor and commonalty, their fishermen, or others through them to the tenants of the said buildings over the Fischshous, and if such do happen, the mayor and commonalty shall amend it.

It appears by information from Oliver de Sauebuse, to whom the king committed the custody of the said stew, that men having lands adjoining thereto prevent him from receiving the profits pertaining to the king and to him by reason of his said custody within the bounds of the said stew, asserting that the keeper ought not to mow grass in the lands or meadows adjoining thereto, and that neither the king nor his keeper ought to receive any other profit except from so much grass or rushes (cirpis) as the keeper can mow from his boat in the summer time by having one foot in the boat and one on shore; also, that the said men and others within the said stew claim the right of fishing and do fish to the king's damage. The king, therefore, wishing to be certified of the bounds of the stew, as well the bounds within which the profit of herbage and other sources pertain to the king and his keeper of the said stew as the water rises or falls, as the bounds within which others have no right of fishing, nor can fish without special licence, has appointed the above commissioners to survey the said stew and the lands and places adjoining thereto, with 24 knights and other good men of the county of York, together with the said Oliver and others to be named by him who preceded him in the said custody, and to send the inquisition made thereof to the king.
